Look for Beauty BY LILLIAN RUSSELL.

If we notice people at all we are bound to form opinions, and if we consider their words and deeds we just as naturally pass judgment. Unfortunately, our opinions are generally reached before all the evidence has been placed before us. They are often merely first impressions.
Cultivate a kindly feeling toward others, and the world will look brighter to you than if you are harsh and cruel.

There is nobody so bad but what there is some good in them, it is said, and there is nothing so ugly but whatsome attractive feature can be found about it. We can see the good things and blind ourselves to the bad, or we can look only upon the ugly things and close our eyes to all that is beautiful.

If your own heart and mind are right and your head is filled with beautiful thoughts you will not want to be around people who see only the ugly side of life. If you dwell only upon the admirable traits in the people you know and the pretty side of things you see you will be sought after as an agreeable companion. People will more

Aside from the impression you make by kindly considering others and looking for the best in them, you will find that there are other reasons for the cultivation of such a habit. You will rapidly acquire a frame of mind which will make your life more worth living. There are enough ugly and depressing things on the surface without utilizing the magnifying glass to look for more.

Remember: If you are going to search for only ugly traits in others and the flaws in every inanimate thing, you are going to miss a great deal that is really worth seeing during your

Mrs. Stovall Improving.

Mrs. William P. Stovall, who has been ill with pneumonia in her home in Highland Park, is now improving slowly. Mrs. J. L. Sehon and her small gon, Lee, have just arrived from Huntington, W. Va., and are visiting at the former's old home.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN.

Celia: You can do much toward regulating the circulation in the ears by means of application of hot and cold small soft towels so that they make a small square large enough to cover the ears. Wring them out of ice water and apply them to each ear. When they get warm wring them out of exceedingly hot water, as hot as you can comfortable stand, and apply them to the ears, keeping them on until they are no longer hot. Alternate the hot and cold a half dozen times. Finish with the cold water.

Mrs. John T. Anderson, of 908 West Franklin Street, is spending some time in New York City.

Mrs. William H. Sadler, of Richmond, is the guest of friends in Norfolk this week.

E. I. S.: Sties are a frequent cause of eye trouble in children, and also of older people. They are due to the irritation of the hair follicles out of which the eyelashes spring. fectious, but just some vague effect of draft or weather.

"Yes, to be sure," says the victim of a "cold," "it is going round the store. We've all got it at home." And then he libels the weather, even if the weather is perfect. "Sudden change accounts for it, I suppose."

Not a word about drafts or damp-ness or bad weather. Just a transfer of excreta from one person to another— a transaction which can take place most readily indoors in a warm room where there are no drafts.

There is really no need of having the much too common "cold." No more need of catching a "cold" than there is of catching diphtheria. You can avoid "colds" altogether by seeing to it that no one with a "cold" passes his excretia over to you.

The board of directors of the Young Women's Christian Association will meet in the central building, on Fifth Street, near Main, this morning at 11 o'clock. Important business is to be transacted.

If a barrier of cleanliness and common sense were erected around every fresh "cold"—If every known case, no matter how mild, were reasonably well isolated so far as personal contact with nonimmunes is concerned—the danger-ous disease coryas, would soon be say onsing the busy, energetic nonimmunes is concerned—the dangers out disease, coryza, would soon be as rare as a pleasant day in June.

And the weather wouldn't matter in the least.

The speaker told of the different periods of development in the association, its home influence, educational approximately department.

Reply: 1. A majority of us, at least, harbor latent or inactive foci of living tuberculosis germs in the lymph glands of the neck or deep in the thorax, as noted in autopsies on individuals dying from all causes. 2. The small greenish idmps passed a few hours after a dose of any bland oil (like the olive oil in fake gallistone remedies) are not gallistones, but merely solidified or soaplified lumps of the oil, which any healthy person would pass after a similar dose of oil. Some of these lumps are as large as hickorynuts—and if true gallistones of that size came away in that quantity, you would never live to tell the tale. A curious thing about these near-gallstones is that they melt away again if they stand for a few days noted in autopsies on individuals dving near-galistones is that they melt away again if they stand for a few days—and the real galistone resists all efforts made to melt it away. You've been buncoed, madam. If you had galistones in the first place you've got them yet.

Reply: Don't wear a brace-have a thorough physical examination. We haven't the slightest idea what causes your trouble. Eat fresh, well cooked your trouble. Eat tresh, well cooked food, and stop eating before you lose your appetite. If you are sixteen eat four times a day and between meals. If you are sixty, eat twice a day and occasionally skip a meal.

A. O. H. asks: Is hay fever con-tagious? Would one be likely to take ingious? Would one be likely to take it from an office partner who sneezes continually and has a stopped-up nose? I catch cold very easily.

Reply: Hay fever is not contagious—but it is probable that you do catch cold from your partner. Make him have cultures taken from his nose, and, if the cultures show the presence of certain specific reaves make him under certain specific gervns, make him under-go a course of vaccine treatment ac-cordingly, for his own good as well as for your safety.

resident of Young Women's Christian Association Tells Woman's Club of Its Work.

Miss Katharine H. Hawes, president of the Young Women's Christian Association, talked to the members of the Woman's Club yesterday afternoon upon the subject of the work of the association in this city. The title of the lecture was "Philanthropy," and, made as it was, by a woman who has given of herself and her time in the effort to make life better and brighter for others, it was a most impressive one. Mrs. Thomas Cary Johnson pre-sented the speaker to her audience as sented the speaker to her audience as one known and loved by Richmond people for the beauty of her purposeful life, and the clearness of her vision in work of service.

Miss Hawes sketched in vivid and striking detail the work of the Young Women's Christian Association in Richmond in meeting the needs of the women and girls of the community. She said that the whole situation has changed entirely in the last fifty years, and compared the life of a girl of that period and the busy, energetic hours of the woman of to-day. Every-Particular A majority of us at least. The work is co-operative, and "the way of the association in meeting them. way of the association in meeting them. The work is co-operative, and "the poor little rich girl" needs to come in touch with her less fortunate sisters, just as much as the girl who stumbles forward in life, bearing burdens almost unbelievable. The principle of the association is to build up and prevent, a friendly house by the side of the road, ready to aid any who seek it.

Miss Hawes made it all into a story-Miss Hawes made it all into a story—a strangely magnetic and appealing
